Management commentary

In Hong Kong, PMI indicated worsening business activity conditions in private-sector in February. The index was down to 49.7 in February from January's 49.9. The main cause of the decline was a reduction in incoming new business. In addition, new orders from international markets and mainland China lost the steam. The manufacturing sector experienced the most significant fall in output.

In China, Manufacturing PMI dropped from 49.2 in January to 49.1 in February, being in line with the market consensus. On the other hand, non-Manufacturing PMI went up from 50.7 in January and 51.4 in February, beating the market expectations. The cause of the improvement was largely due to stronger services activity more than offsetting a further slowdown in construction.

In March, fund mainly received dividends from: HONG KONG EXCHANGES & CLEAR, BANK CENTRAL ASIA PT, NETEASE INC, TAIWAN SEMICONDUCTOR MANUFAC, MALAYAN BANKING BHD, HANG SENG BANK HKD5, PUBLIC BANK BERHAD, VIPSHOP HOLDINGS LTD ADR, LITE-ON TECHNOLOGY CORP. and BANGKOK DUSIT MED FOREIGN.

From sector point of view, stocks from Information Technology, Communication Services, Industrials outperformed benchmark whereas the ones from Health Care, Consumer Discretionary, Consumer Staples under-performed over the month.
